

COVID-19 – Taking Action Together

March 17, 2020

By Wayne Egan

The last two weeks have been unprecedented for every person and business in Canada. In line with growing public health advice and reaffirmed by our Prime Minister yesterday, we have transitioned our firm to work from home for the present time. We are fully committed to helping you manage the complexities of the many personal and business challenges that we already face, and the likely many more to come. Please reach out to us at any time. We are here to provide legal services as usual.

We are also dedicated to the short and long-term well-being of our employees and their families. We will continue to play our full part in protecting everyone's health, supporting those directly affected, and helping to get Canada back to normal as quickly as possible.

Finally, we wish you, your families and your colleagues all the best as we navigate this period together.
